DEFINITIONS

PARADOX (n): a statement that seems to say two opposite things but that may be true.

QUOTES

"Christian leadership models itself upon our Lord Jesus Christ. One of the paradoxes of His ministry was that although He was so obviously the leader, He was conspicuously the servant. He illustrated and underlined this truth when He washed the disciples' feet (JOHN 13). We are spiritually effective as leaders as we follow His example. Although leaders, we are first and foremost servants."

... Derek Prime

"One great paradox of the Christian life is that we are fully responsible for our Christian growth and at the same time fully dependent upon the Holy Spirit to give us both the desire to grow and the ability to do it. God's grace does not negate the need for responsible action on our part, but rather makes it possible."

... Jerry Bridges

"Humility is a paradox. The moment you think you've finally found it, you've lost it. There has yet to be written a book entitled, "Humility and How I Achieved It." And yet, God expects (and rewards) an attitude of servant-like humility in His followers."

For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. For in it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith for faith, as it is written, "The righteous shall live by faith."
